Acknowledgement of Country

Gunaikurnai Traditional Owners are the first peoples of much of Gippsland.

Gunaikurnai Nation comprises five major clans: the Brabralung Clan in Central Gippsland, the Brataualung Clan in South Gippsland, the Krauatungalung Clan near the Snowy River, the Tatungalung Clan near Lakes Entrance, and the Brayakaulung (or Braiakaulung) Clan, which includes the area now known as Latrobe City.

We recognise the Gunaikurnai people's deep connection to Country and culture, as well as the historical impacts of dispossession and displacement. The ongoing effects on First Peoples, Country, and cultural heritage remain significant.

We also acknowledge the contributions of First Nations peoples to our community and ask that, during your travels, you respect Indigenous community members, their culture, and their Country.

For more information regarding the Traditional owners of the land, scan the QR code or visit gunaikurnai.org

Gunaikurnai Creation Story

The first Gunaikurnai came down from the mountains in Victoria's north-west carrying his canoe on his head. He was Borun, the pelican. He crossed over a deep river at what is now known as Sale, and walked on alone to Tarra Warackel (Port Albert) in the west. As he walked, he heard a constant tapping sound, but could not identify it. When he reached the deep water of the inlets, Borun put down his canoe and much to his surprise, there was a woman in it. She was Tuk, the musk duck. He was happy to see her and she became his wife and the mother of the Gunaikurnai people. They are the parents of the five Gunaikurnai clans.
